RE: Positive social relationships

Dear Parents and Carers,

I hope this message finds you well.

We are writing to ask for your support in speaking with your child about the importance of kindness, respect, and inclusion. Recently, we have noticed a number of low-level fallings-out between children across different year groups. While these are not significantly serious incidents, all unkind words and actions are unnecessary and are a reminder of how important it is to keep reinforcing positive behaviour, both at school and at home.

As part of our school values, we regularly discuss friendship, empathy, and how to work through disagreements respectfully. However, we know that these lessons are even more powerful when they are echoed at home.

We kindly ask that you take a few minutes to talk with your child about:

- The importance of being kind to others, even when we may not agree with them;
- Including others in play and conversation;
- Speaking up in a respectful way if someone is unkind or hurtful;
- Letting an adult know if they need help sorting out a problem.

Together, we can help our children develop the social skills they need to build strong, positive relationships and feel happy and safe at school.

Thank you for your continued support.

Warm regards,

L.C. Crossland
