

Who is it?

Oh dear!

One crane fly is stuck in a web. And something's coming. Something with long, stripy, hairy legs.

Better watch out, crane fly!

Garden spider

Too late. It's a garden spider, and it's come to gobble up the crane fly. Garden spiders spin a beautiful, circular web of silk. Then they coat it with sticky glue. Any insects that fly into the web get stuck fast. That's how the spider catches its breakfast.
